Three different commands:

- A bold word made with the `\textbf{}`
- A gray phrase made with the `\graytext{}` command instead than overriding `\bfseries` like before
- A red phrase made with the `\textcolor{red}{}` command (the first argument is the color, the second one is the text).

About me

Short section about myself.

Header profile section

It's possible to hide the profile picture using `\makeheaderprofilenoimg` instead than `\makeheaderprofile` (you could remove `\profilepic{image.png}` then).

Info profile section

The command `\makeinfoprofile` doesn't use empty macros `\cvsite*` (e.g. `\cvsitepersonal{}` instead than `\cvsitepersonal{example.com}`).

About the info profile commands

If not empty the `\cvaddressurl{}` command create a custom hyperlink containing the `\cvaddress{Address, Nation}` text. Same for `\cvskypeurlbase{join.skype.com/...}` and `\cvskypeurl{skype-username}` (visit skype FAQs) to create an invite url.

Side footer

Now there are three commands to populate the side footer:

- `\makefooterprofile`, the old way to create a custom side footer (it takes two mandatory arguments)
- `\makefootersidenode`, useful for creating the same footer on all existing pages
- `\makefootersidenodefill`

Use the commands `\pagenumber{}``` and `\textfootersidenote{}``` to add the page number (e.g. "Page 2 of 2") and the side footer text.

Progress bar skill sections

The command `\customskills[Section title]{`{}`}`{}`}`{}`}`{}`` take three argument (the last one is optional).

The first argument is the section title, e.g. Languages. The second macro argument is an array of couples made by words and float numbers separated by slashes, e.g.

``{Latin/4.3},`{Greek/6}``; the number of course represents how much the skill ability is high. This array separator is a comma. Note that the array order is reversed: in the output list created by the example above has the word "Greek" before "Latin".
